"Not a lighthouse," Ilse said. "A light. There is a difference, though nobody believes me when I explain it."

The girl considered this seriously, then asked what the difference was, and Ilse found that for once she did not mind explaining.